ANTIQUÉ BRASS CARE INSTRUCTIONS

Your order includes our Antique brass finish. The pieces are first given a dark bronze finish and then hand polished back to brass. This gives further depth and an authentic aged finish. We have then applied a clear natural beeswax layer to the brass to preserve the colour. This is a “living finish” and will continue to age over time enhancing the appearance of the piece.

A wax coating is applied to slow the ageing process, but please ensure your electrician has clean, grease-free hands when handling the light.

The humid environment of a bathroom or kitchen will accelerate the ageing process and may age faster in these rooms than other areas.

To preserve the Antique brass finish on your lights, please follow these instructions:

Clean your product regularly with a damp cloth for stubborn marks a pH-neutral liquid soap is all you need Never use cleaning agents that contain abrasives

To brighten the brass take a little brass polish on a clean cloth and in a single stroke, wipe over the brass. Take another clean cotton cloth and rub the polish off, this will show the brass beneath – do this on a small area to test. If you polish too much, give the parts a few weeks and the colour will naturally darken. Then apply a natural beeswax to the brass and buff with a clean cloth to keep the colour as it appears.

Ask your electrician to take care when handling the products. Brass is a soft metal and will scratch easily. Grease, plaster, tile grout and other building materials may permanently damage your product. Greasy hands will leave dark fingerprints on brass finishes, which will begin to show in the coming months. Whilst we endeavour to create products of the highest quality, the hand finished nature of the products means there may be small differences in the finishes of each piece. In the unlikely event your order arrives damaged or defective please contact us prior to installation.

If you have any questions or need spare parts please contact us with your order number, which is attached to your product.

We hope you are extremely happy with your product.
